Eagles fly with JJ White modifications to Lincoln Financial Field

JULY 2004 (PHILADELPHIA, PA) – Lincoln Financial Field opened with great celebration in 2003, but it soon became apparent that the facility needed a few modifications to perfect its serviceability and comfort for the Eagles, visiting teams, and fans. Because of its reputation for the highest quality craftsmanship, its in-house fulltime workforce, and its exemplary safety record, JJ White was chosen to perform the project.

During the summer of 2004 “The Linc” required immediate emergency demolition and repair of water damage to luxury suites. The work was completed by JJ White Incorporated in just two weeks so that it was ready in time for the season’s opening event. JJ White craftsmen worked accelerated extra shifts to successfully accomplish the project and turned over sixty refurbished suites to their rightful occupants in plenty of time for Season Two.

In addition to the emergency work, JJ White made the following renovations in the spring and summer of 2004:

- Upgrades and alterations to the women’s locker rooms
- Reconfiguration of security area accessibility
- Renovations to the equipment manager’s office and store

The work involved demolition, carpentry, concrete, plumbing, mechanical, and electrical work. JJ White has all these specialties in-house, so was able to complete the project in its usual on-time and on-budget fashion.

JJ White Incorporated has been serving the construction needs of the Mid-Atlantic Region for four generations since being founded in 1920. It is a single-source, multi-trade contractor with its own workforce and fabrication shop. The company’s versatility and over $15 million in “owned” equipment such as cranes; backhoes, and mobile equipment give JJ White the flexibility to meet every construction challenge, including buildings of all sizes and highly complex industrial projects. The company has maintained a standard for excellence since 1920 and can honestly say that it has never lost a client due to dissatisfaction. JJ White has also been honored to receive the PA PennSafe Award, distinguishing the company as the safest contractor in Pennsylvania.

St. Vincent's Home for Children benefits from JJ White generosity

JULY 2004 (PHILADELPHIA, PA) – The good people at JJ White Incorporated have established a tradition over the past three years of holding a “Christmas in July” to benefit the children of St. Vincent’s-Tacony Home for Children. The lunchtime party consists of food and fun, with every attendee making a monetary donation for St. Vincent’s.

The most recent event took place in July 2004 and raised enough money to buy new sneakers and back-to-school supplies for the children of St. Vincent’s.

The company also supports St. Vincent’s home at Christmastime. Last year’s “Deck the Halls with Coats for Children” provided money for new winter coats for all 61 children at the home, with enough left over for spring jackets, as well. The staff at the home were very grateful, writing, “Often the children must wear their winter coats until it gets warm enough for no jacket. This year, for the first time that I can remember, we will be able to change coats with the season. Many, many thanks to you and your wonderful staff.”

The tradition of contributing to St. Vincent’s began in 2002 with a site visit prior to a project bid. The caring JJ White visitors saw what a wonderful program St. Vincent’s provides—care, shelter, and education—on very limited resources. Children arrive at the home with only the clothes on their back, and are happy just to be safe. The JJ White people were genuinely touched and wanted to do something to give the children a few things of their own, to keep and take with them when they moved on to foster care or other permanent living arrangements.

Since it was the middle of the year and the employees wanted to do something right away, they began the “Christmas in July” tradition. Since 2002, the July and December events have raised over $xx,000 for the children of St. Vincent’s. Currently the home cares for 67 residents, including 29 children (ages 7-16), 19 teenage mothers (ages 13-16), and 19 babies.

The caring employees of JJ White are part of an organization that has been helping the Philadelphia community and beyond since the company was founded in 1920. With four generations of experience in general and mechanical contracting, JJ White is a single-source, multi-trade contractor with its own workforce and fabrication shops. The company is expert in renovation and remodeling of historic buildings, as well as building new structures for residential, business, and healthcare use. Its industrial projects have benefited the pharmaceutical, petroleum, chemical and process industries, plus steel, food processing, pulp & paper, utilities, and power generation. JJ White’s services cover the Mid-Atlantic Region.

JJ White Incorporated renovates Gratz College facilities

SEPTEMBER 2004 (PHILADELPHIA, PA) – Gratz College, the oldest academic institution of Jewish Studies in North America, desired renovation of the Holocaust Studies Area and Rare Book Library at its Melrose Park campus. The College chose JJ White Incorporated as the preferred contractor to perform the project because of its experience in historical renovations and its expertise in multiple construction disciplines.

The goal is to produce an aesthetically pleasing, comfortable, and secure study area for this portion of the College's invaluable historical collection. JJ White craftsmen are performing demolition, carpentry, millwork, glazing, mechanical, and electrical work to accomplish the desired result.

JJ White Incorporated was founded in 1920 as a mechanical contractor. Today JJ White is a single-source, multi-trade contractor performing almost exclusively with its own workforce and working out of its own fabrication shops. The JJ White workforce is the largest in the Mid-Atlantic Region. Fielding as many as 2,000 craftsmen, the company is committed to quality and safety. Many of its supervisors have been with the company for as many as 40 years and are thoroughly trained and experienced in the JJ White system. Two hundred fifty key supervisors have been with the company an average of 15 years. With such a large, experienced workforce and over $15 million in "owned" equipment such as cranes, backhoes, and mobile equipment, JJ White finishes on schedule, and often ahead of it. Since 1920, the company has never failed to complete a project and has never lost a client due to dissatisfaction. JJ White has also been honored to receive the PA PennSafe Award, distinguishing the company as the safest contractor in Pennsylvania.
